Our Hong Kong Office

Richards Butler Hong Kong commenced practice in 1980 and is one of the largest law firms in Hong Kong.

The firm enjoys an advantageous position, having benefited from early entry to market, and has led the way on many significant matters in Asia. These include advising on the first wave of Insider Dealing inquiries, successfully defending the Hong Kong Stock Exchange in the highest appellate court, and participating in the first Hong Kong listings of PRC enterprises. In January 2008, Reed Smith merged with Richards Butler Hong Kong and now practices here under the name Reed Smith Richards Butler LLP.

As a single global partnership, our firm is able to ensure that relationships built over years with clients in one region can be introduced and supported by our lawyers everywhere, so that our clients have access to a global full-service law firm. The combined firm has a leading practice in Hong Kong, with growing offices in Beijing, Shanghai and Singapore.

In December 2020, we are delighted to be marking our four decades in Asia with the 40th anniversary of our Hong Kong office. Having opened in 1980, the firm's Hong Kong office now has around 70 lawyers and is a key part of our firm's significant growth across the region. The firm has nearly 120 lawyers across its four offices in Asia: Beijing, Shanghai, Singapore and Hong Kong.

The story of RSRB is one of

Hong Kong office has grown organically, with half of the partners having done their training at the firm. This has forged a real sense of identity and common purpose.

In a time of rapidly increased mobility within the profession, the continuity and stability represented by RSRB is appreciated by our lawyers and our clients alike. With the added strength of combining our practice with Reed Smith, we have been able to attract even better work both from our existing clients and from new clients. From a training and career perspective, this means greater variety and a wider group of experts from which to learn.

Banking & Asset Finance

 Back to contents

We are a market-leading corporate finance and asset finance practice and our team also advises on secured, leveraged, M&A and pre-IPO financings, shipping and off-shore energy assets, project and structured finance and debt capital markets. We regularly advise on the structuring of complex international cross-border financings.

Our global team has decades of experience advising banks and other financial companies on complex financing transactions. We are among a select group of law firms that can provide seamless, cross-border advice on financial transactions. Our lawyers have acted as lead counsel on billions of dollars' worth of transactions worldwide, drawing on the knowledge of the firm's multiple industry sectors, including real estate, funds, manufacturing, healthcare, finance, transportation and energy.

Corporate and Investment Funds

Back to contents

Our practical and commercial approach has made us one of Hong Kong's premier corporate transactional firms, with significant experience in capital markets, mergers and acquisitions, private equity and other complex corporate transactions and private investment fund matters.

We advise on both public and private company M&As and have advised on some of the most complicated, hostile and controversial takeovers and privatizations of public companies in Hong Kong. In addition, we also advise both private equity clients in their investments into PRC, as well as a wide range of PRC issuers, both in long term investments and pre-IPO situations. Our clients include established Hong Kong, PRC and regional corporates (listed and private), as well as local and international financial institutions and private equity firms. We have a proven track record in the IPO market, having completed more than 250 IPOs on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange on behalf of both sponsors and issuers. We, and our US Securities team based in Hong Kong, advise on both equity and debt securities issues.

Litigation and Arbitration

 Back to contents

We have stayed at the forefront of firms representing a wide array of high net worth individuals, small businesses, banks, large multinational companies and the world's largest private and publicly listed corporations on several of Hong Kong's most significant and complex domestic, cross-border and multi-jurisdictional disputes.

The hallmark of our disputes practice is the emphasis we place on providing clear and pragmatic advice as well as devising strategic and commercial solutions for our clients. We have particular expertise in a wide range of commercial and banking litigation and routinely advise on commodities disputes, privacy data, complex labour, employment and immigration issues, discrimination complaints, property litigation, copyright and trademark defence and enforcement, sale and supply of goods and services, construction disputes, companies related matters (including mergers and acquisitions), shareholders' and boardroom disputes, insolvency and asset recovery. We also advise on the new competition law regime, insurance related matters and claims as well as professional indemnity disputes. Our GAR 30 ranked arbitration practice has significant experience undertaking arbitrations in Hong Kong (HKIAC/ICC).

Regulatory, Commercial Fraud and White Collar Crime

Complementing our market-leading corporate, banking and asset finance and litigation practices is our highly regarded regulatory and white collar crime practice.

As well as advising and assisting clients in navigating their way through Hong Kong's expanding maze of laws and regulations, our strength lies in our ability to handle adeptly all types of regulatory enquiries, investigations, and the defence of all types of disciplinary, civil proceedings and criminal prosecutions instituted by the Securities and Futures Commission, Hong Kong Monetary Authority and the Hong Kong Stock Exchange, ICAC, Hong Kong Police (including the Joint Financial Intelligence Unit and Commercial Crimes Bureau) and under the US Foreign Corrupt Practices Act and UK Bribery Act 2010 for bribery and money laundering offences, commercial frauds and cross-border corruption amongst others.

In shipping, we act predominantly for owners, charterers, freight forwarders and P&I clubs, undertaking wet, dry and finance work. Our team includes one mariner and ex-seafarer, and we have acted in the highest profile casualties in the region over the last 20 years. In international trade, we act for traders and financial institutions in relation to disputes over the trading of physical commodities and paper.

Our transportation practice covers the full spectrum of legal needs for transportation companies, whether they move people or goods, including resources and commodities, or anything else the future might hold.

Our property lawyers advise on all aspects of Hong Kong property laws providing transactional, advisory and litigation support in relation to both commercial and residential properties. We also advise on the property aspects of IPOs. Our clients include listed corporations, private developers and financial institutions.

Whether the clients are an investor, lender, developer, landlord or tenant, they face the pressures of a particularly competitive real estate market. Local, regional or global, their market is constantly changing and shows no signs of slowing.

Our client's market is our market, and, whatever category they fall into, we are here to help them achieve their goals. Our lawyers offer seamless, comprehensive service founded on insights gained over years of targeted real estate experience. We work with our clients to understand their objectives and tailor practical, commercial solutions that not only meet their immediate needs, but align with their wider business strategy.

Being a Responsible Business is vitally important to us

Pro Bono

Pro bono is at the core of our identity and an invaluable part of our culture at Reed Smith. Our pro bono commitment spans the globe, involving offices across the U.S., Europe, the Middle East and Asia. Our lawyers invest significant time and effort every year to help our international and local communities. We are proud that in 2022 our teams across our global platform dedicated 92,000 hours to pro bono matters.

Many pro bono projects bring lawyers from our offices all over the world, allowing us to work as a team. Pro bono is also one way in which we develop our relationships with our in-house counsel clients – we partner with our fee-earning clients on pro bono work to increase capacity and offer more support to our pro bono clients. We encourage all our lawyers to get involved in pro bono work and support them to proactively seek out and develop new pro bono opportunities.

Environmental sustainability today, tomorrow & beyond

As a law firm with a global footprint, we recognize that we have an obligation to reduce the direct impact of our business operations on the natural environment.

We are committed to being a sustainable global law firm that delivers positive outcomes for our clients, communities, employees, environment, profession, and suppliers. Environmental, social and governance is vitally important to us, and we understand that we are on this journey together and that acting ethically protects our reputation and that of the clients we represent, with whom we value building strong, long-standing relationships.

Community volunteering

We are committed to supporting and helping our communities. We are supporting vulnerable areas of the communities and fundraising events promoting awareness plus raising much needed funds for many charities.

Our People

We know that as you meet with our people, you will get a really good feel of what we stand for and how you can play an exciting part with our people to drive progress for our clients.

“I am extremely proud to be part of RSRB, as we continue to pioneer in new areas and strengthen our legal presence in a wide range of industries, building upon the strong relationships with, and trust and support of our growing client base. Looking back at my first days at Richards Butler as a trainee lawyer equipped with legal experience from working with the Hong Kong Judiciary, I can see that I have grown with the partnership, enjoying every moment and appreciating its positive values and caring culture.”

Asha Sharma
Partner

“We have our trainees share an office with a partner. This is among the most beneficial aspects of the training one can get – you cannot help but feel that you are a part of the team moving forward in real time, and more importantly, you get involved.

Lawyering is time sensitive and requires multi-tasking. Teamwork can be experienced in the fullest sense – at RSRB, you are never alone!

KC Mok
Partner

“Firm culture is one critical factor which juniors often talk about but overlook when actually deciding which firm to join, it is not by chance that most of our senior partners were trained at RSRB and remained with the firm ever since. Developing one’s legal skills would be important for your career progression, but how else do you think you could progress quickly unless your seniors are willing to share and spend time to mentor? To be a successful lawyer you need to be developed all rounded, and at the same time, enjoy the process. At RSRB, we are passionate about bringing out the full potential of our people and all we want in return is the same willingness to develop yourself.”

Our Trainee Programme

We aim to retain 100% of our trainees upon completion of their training contract.

- Banking and Asset Finance
- Corporate and Investment Funds
- Commercial Litigation and Arbitration
- Property
- Shipping Litigation

Upon joining RSRB, you will undertake a comprehensive induction programme prior to commencing your first seat, which includes office tour, high count visit, introductions to all our practices and other essential professional skills trainings. Other than the key information you need to develop and prosper, you will also form solid friendships with other trainees who will be your buddies throughout the traineeships.

Learning and development won't stop at the end of the induction. We offer a wide range of trainings throughout your traineeships including CPD seminars, professional skills workshops and also e-Learning courses which allows you to learn at your own pace.

The hands-on legal training and experience you will gain throughout your seat rotations is where you really learn how to be a great lawyer. We want you to get involved in client work and make a real contribution to the service we offer to our clients. You will be directly supervised by our partners and share an office with your supervising partner whenever possible. This unique arrangement provides an excellent opportunity for you to learn by example and obtain invaluable expert guidance. When it comes to your second seat rotation, you will be spoilt for choice. We always do our best to accommodate your seat preferences by consulting you before the seat rotation.

Last but not least, we aim to retain 100% of our trainees upon completion of their training contracts, which is proven by our excellent retention records. It is instructive to note that half of our current partners started as trainees with the firm.

Life as a RSRB Trainee

 Back to contents

May Wong

Partner – Corporate
Trainee Solicitor 2006 - 2008

How was the transition from lab to law?

I joined the firm as a trainee in 2006 after completing my PCLL at the University of Hong Kong. After having worked eight years in a lab on scientific research on the back of my first degree in Genetics, the thought of working in an office and working my way towards a professional qualification was quite daunting. But the firm did a great job of making the transition easier and after my training contract was confirmed, the firm began inviting us to firm events, including Christmas parties, Spring Dinner and dragon boat races, where we had the opportunity to meet others in my trainee intake before we officially started at the firm. Through those events, we also had the opportunity to meet our other colleagues in the firm, many of whom have gone on to be lifelong friends. It was in those events where we first experienced the friendliness of what was to become our future workplace.

From Trainee Solicitor to Partner at RSRB

Having joined as a trainee at Richards Butler which then became RSRB, qualifying as an associate in the Corporate and then being promoted to partner, I have experienced the fabric of the firm at all different levels. I truly believe that the purpose of RSRB trains you to be an exceptional legal professional and that the training does not stop after two years. We are always learning. We constantly push our lawyers outside of their comfort zone, which may be overwhelming at times, but we believe in the mantra “if you are not challenged, you will not improve”. Junior colleagues can always draw comfort from the fact that there will always be a senior colleague or partner to provide guidance. Teamwork is vital to the success of a firm and that is how we work, and expect each other to work.

The wellness of our colleagues is also very important to us. As well as working hard, we also play hard. Our annual events include themed Christmas parties, Spring dinners and dragon boat races as well as other charity fundraising events throughout the year. By participating in these events (which is highly encouraged), colleagues of different departments and at all levels get to know each other outside of the office environment and on a personal level, which goes towards reinforcing the spirit of the firm. It is often these events which lead to the fun memories which are shared and recalled many years afterwards.

Moving from working in a lab to working in front of a computer, from science to law, has been challenging at times, but is a decision (as well as the decision to join this firm) which I have no regrets about.

Gilbert Mok

Associate – Corporate
Seconded Trainee in 2016

Tell us about your path to RSRB?

I joined RSRB first as a secondee from the Department of Justice during my traineeship for 6 months. I re-joined the firm’s corporate department a few years after qualifying as a solicitor.

What would appeal to a graduate joining RSRB?

As a secondee to RSRB, like other trainees of the firm, I was placed under the direct supervision of a partner. Indeed, all trainees in RSRB are seated in the same room with a partner. The exposure trainees have is therefore immense – you can witness and observe first hand how the partner handle legal problems and communicate with clients, counterparties and regulators and other colleagues within the firm. The arrangement allows trainee to be integrated to the team very quickly and provides ample opportunities for trainees to learn and to develop into a practising lawyer.

What sets RSRB apart?

At RSRB, depending on the needs of the clients, lawyers from different practice groups and locations work very closely from time to time. In time, I am able to pick up certain know-how relating to the various practices of this full service global firm. The collegial culture inside and out of the Hong Kong office contributed to the exchange of ideas and I am very much impressed by the breadth and depth of the knowledge and guidance that my peers are willing to share at various occasions.

Life as a RSRB Trainee

Cheri Leung

Associate – Litigation
Trainee Solicitor 2017-2019

What do you like about your job?

As an associate at RSRB, I am given plenty of opportunity to work on a wide variety of matters ranging from arbitration to court proceedings, from commercial and contractual disputes to judicial reviews, and from contentious work to advisory and regulatory compliance matters. These experiences are helpful in enriching my legal knowledge as well as equipping me with the tools and skills that would enable me to assist in offering practical solutions to address client's needs. Also, I am also proud to be part of the firm's pro bono team which is responsible for organizing the firm's pro bono efforts within the Hong Kong office.

What is the best part of pro bono work?

Our pro bono team at the Hong Kong office is an intimate and supportive team that do the best we can to offer advice to the less privileged. On the one hand, in a firm-wide context, we work with lawyers from other offices in regional collaboration projects to deliver research work product to our pro bono partners. On the other hand, and on a more domestic level, we are pleased to work with local non-profit and/or nongovernment organizations in assisting pro bono clients in relation to employment and labour disputes on a regular basis.

Learning about the difficulties that these pro bono organizations and lay clients face on a personal level reminds me of how fortunate I am. This deeply motivates me to contribute to the local community even more by doing what I can to help on a professional level. It's always great to have more colleagues involved. Trainees are more than welcome to participate.

Yvette Ho

Associate – Banking
Trainee Solicitor 2020-2022

My career path at RSRB

I joined RSRB as a trainee in 2017. After qualifying as a solicitor in Hong Kong in 2019, I became a member of the firm's banking and finance team.

RSRB traineeship programme

The traineeship programme started with a week's induction session, during which trainees were given talks and trainings on the firm's legal practices, supporting departments and knowledge resources. As a global full-service firm, the firm offered us plenty of opportunities and flexibility to explore various practice areas. From our second seat, we were asked to indicate our preferences in the practice areas in which we were interested.

The firm places value on its trainees' personal growth and gives full support and guidance throughout the two-year traineeship. Trainees are generally arranged to sit in the same room with their supervising partners, and the firm adopts an open-door policy whereby trainees and other members of the team are welcomed to drop by others' room to ask questions and take part in discussions. Taking benefit of these arrangements, I was able to learn closely from my supervising partners and other colleagues, and obtained first-hand experience in case handling as well as client management. As a trainee, I was also given the opportunity to deal with a great variety of tasks – ranging from drafting legal documents to attending meetings, investigations and court hearings.

RSRB culture

One of the major reasons why I chose to stay at RSRB after completion of my training contract and qualification is the friendly and collegial culture, which truly differentiate the firm from its counterparts. During my time at RSRB, I have developed longstanding friendships with my batchmates, teammates and other colleagues. Furthermore, life at RSRB is not just about work – apart from regular firm events like Christmas parties and Spring dinners, there are also a wide range of activities initiated and organised by each team from time to time like junk trips, hiking, karaoke nights, etc.

Life at RSRB

Charity Events

Our trainees are regularly involved in various Hong Kong charity events such as:
